

Little Chalfont Nature Park Visitor Code

The Nature Park is a unique place which has remained unspoilt for many years and it would not take much to destroy this special environment. So although our prohibitions look somewhat draconian, they are there to conserve and protect the Park for the future. For example, even on leads dogs will inadvertently scare away wildlife (especially birds) and the meadow grass needs a chance to flourish so it can give shelter to mini-beasts and ball games would put this at risk.

We ask you to please respect our Visitor Code.

No public right of way

The paths in the Nature Park are permissive paths for pedestrians only. It is not a dedicated public right of way and will be closed at certain times of year for essential forestry and maintenance work.

Uneven Ground

Be careful of uneven ground and nature's attempts with roots and ridges, tussocks and tendrils to trip you up. Remember, you are not a muntjac;

Thank you for your co-operation.
